It's scheduled for the day of this month's SUPERMOON.

I will be speaking on the Venus–Mars cycle.

Here we see a stellar line up of planets in dynamic Aries. Chiron, Mercury, Ceres, Eris and Venus join the Sun and Moon.

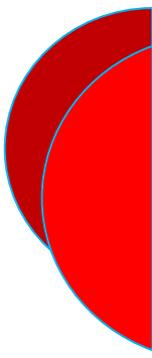

Many of these planets are in sextile aspect with Jupiter in Aquarius and Mars in Gemini, with Mars and Jupiter in a favourable trine. These aspects make a powerful statement. This is a tremendous opportunity to tackle large projects. There is a great deal of enthusiasm, confidence and energy available to make a start and make headway towards a new goal.

This is a very busy New Moon with lots of activity, communication and social engagement too. There is always a lot of get up and go where Aries is concerned and the addition of naturally fiery planets Mars and Jupiter in Air signs adds much more energy and expression. Sextile aspects in themselves are rather like Gemini and Aquarius, which are naturally sextile to 0 Aries. The sky really is the limit now. The only problem here is when there is too much risk taking and not enough structure and discipline. Fortunately, Saturn in Aquarius will help to stabilise this

New Moon so we can sustain the energy output.

Juno is stationary opposite Mars so try to be sensitive to the needs of others while you are focused on your personal projects. Other people may become upset by a perceived lack of support or concern.

scorpio Full Moon

Uranus, Mercury and Venus join the Sun in Taurus at this Scorpio Full Moon. This is a Supermoon, so the Moon will appear much larger than normal as it is close to the Earth now; near its perigee.

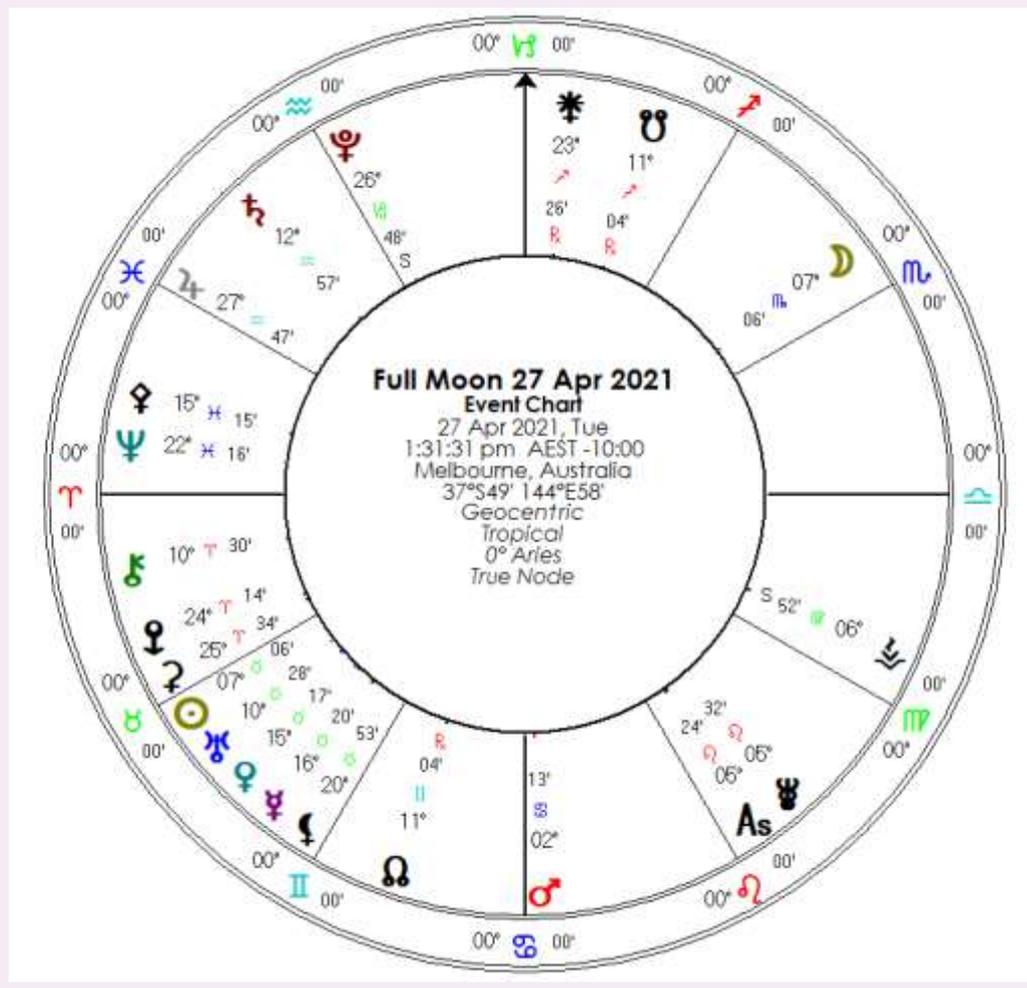

Pluto stations retrograde shortly after this Full Moon, and is squared by Ceres and Eris. This could bring about some feelings of envy and the need for control. Passions run high whenever Pluto and Scorpio are involved.

All fixed signs are intense. The nature of fixed signs, Taurus, Leo, Scorpio and Aquarius is loyal and steadfast. The Sun is located in these signs at the height of each season. This is why we associate them with passion and intensity.

With Uranus involved some surprising developments are on the cards. Mercury and Venus are closely linked, so heart and mind will be focused in one direction. While Uranus can spawn some radical concepts, it's more likely to simply inspire creative effort.

This is a very useful Full Moon for digging deep and finding inspiration and motivation. Creatively, there is a lot of offer this month, both in terms of energy, new ideas, and a commitment to the task at hand. There is also a sustaining influence that bolsters the creative effort and channels it towards practical outcomes. Look within to harness the power of this intense Full Moon.

Daniel Andrews

On Tuesday 9 March Daniel Andrews slipped on wet stairs, breaking several ribs and fracturing his T7 vertebrae. It is expected that he will take a while to recover. The Victorian Premier has had a tough 12 months. First there was the COVID situation to manage, including a big second wave that resulted in a long lockdown and all that entailed, and now this fall. There is no known birth time for the Victorian Premier. I have used 12 noon.

He copped a barrage of criticism from many sectors but stayed the course and in the end no other place in the world did what we did under his leadership – eliminated the virus from the community. In August we went into the long lockdown when transiting Saturn was once again crossing the Premier's nodal axis. Uranus again squared his Mercury in September and Saturn crossed his nodal axis for a third time in late October just as the state was opening up.

In February 2020 when the COVID pandemic first came to Australia, transiting Saturn crossed Dan's nodal axis. Shortly afterwards, in March 2020 transiting Uranus threw him a curveball when it squared his Mars. By July when the hotel quarantine crisis reached a peak, Uranus was squaring his Mercury. Depending on his time of birth, at some point Saturn and Uranus have been ganging up on his natal Moon, which is certain to be in Taurus, but as we don't know a time of birth we can't be sure of the exact position. Nevertheless, in June, transiting Jupiter was now moving across his nodal axis helping to bolster his popularity. Despite the mistakes made by his government in handling this crisis, his hard work and determination to protect the Victorian community was supported by the vast majority of the public. Every day for over 100 days he fronted up to a daily press briefing with the latest data and outlined measures to control the spread of this nasty virus. His efforts have meant that life has returned to virtually normal for most Victorians.

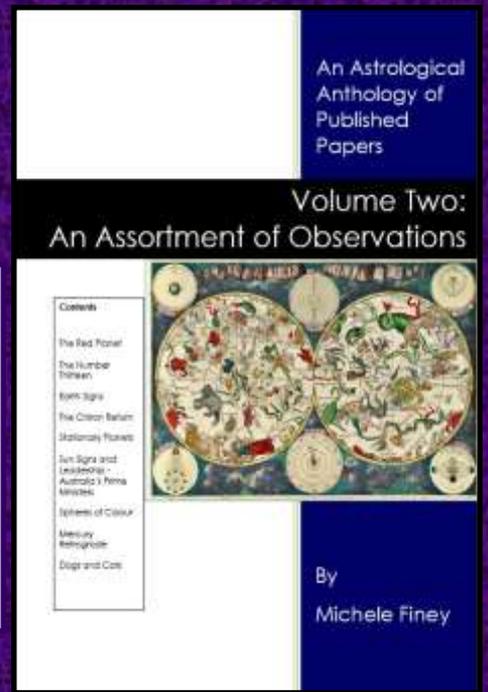

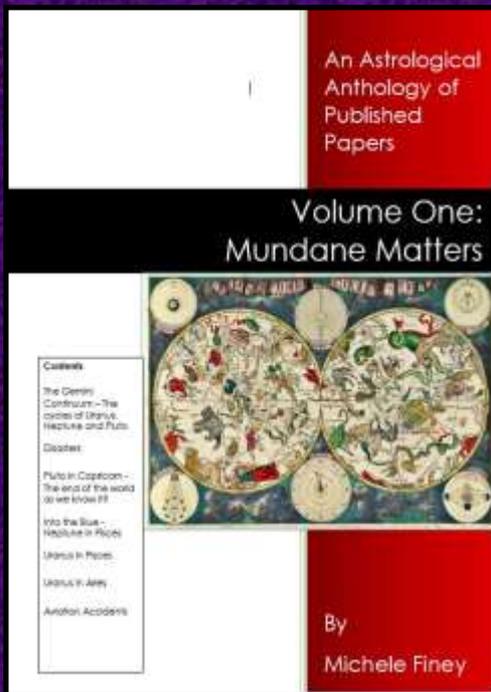

Transiting Jupiter again eased the pressure in early December when it moved over the same nodal point. But by January this year transiting Saturn was opposing his Mars and Mercury. Then on 3 March transiting Pluto arrived at the North Node at 26CP04, just a week before he slipped and fell on the wet stairs, breaking his T7 vertebrae and five ribs.

Saturn was opposite Mercury again on March 15 and Uranus will square it this month. Meanwhile, the transiting North Node is now crossing his natal Saturn while he is recovering from his injuries.

These heavy transits are not over. Pluto will cross his North Node again in June and Saturn will oppose Mercury again in August and December. Pluto will come back to 26CP04 in January 2022 and will hover around there for quite a while.

Chiron will make its return in 2022-3 so the healing process may take quite some time. I'm sure I am not alone in wishing him a full and speedy recovery.
