sol ar ecl ipse

There are some ultra-powerful astrological features in play this month, so it's appropriate that the month kicks off with this potent New Moon.

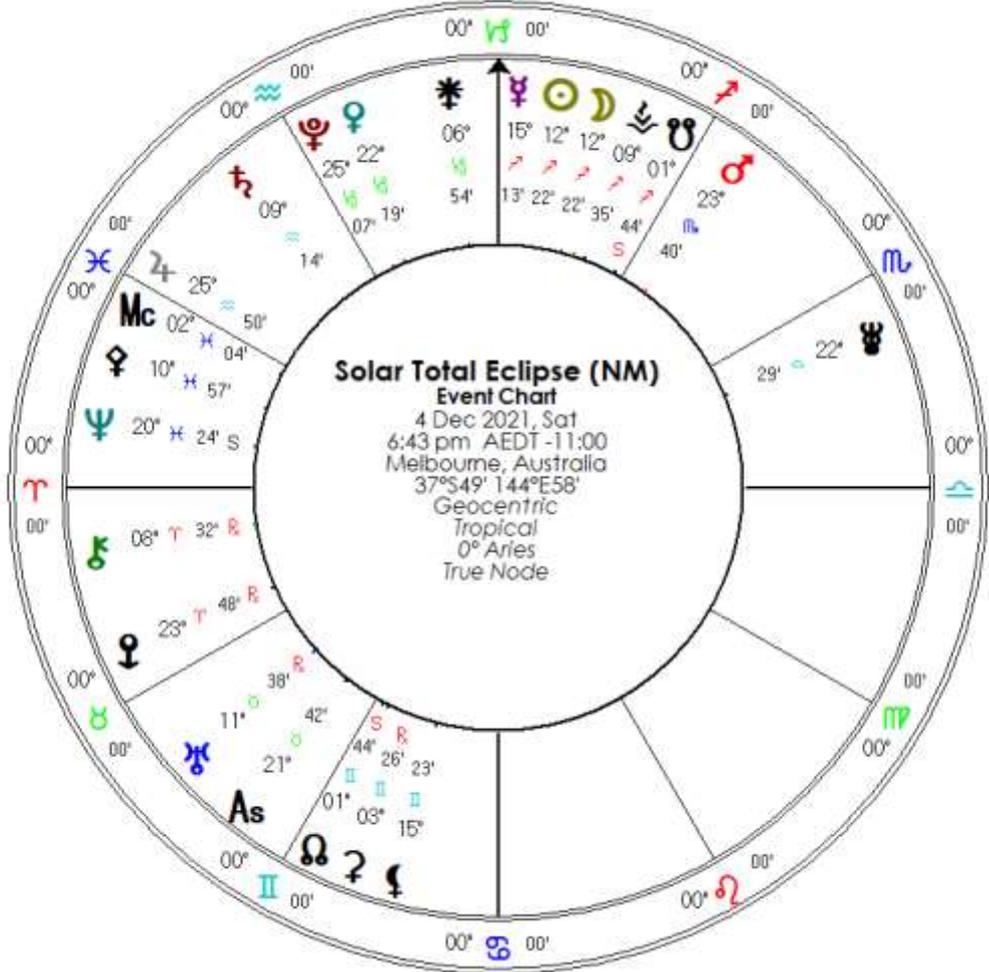

This New Moon is both a Solar Eclipse and an invisible Supermoon.

The eclipse is only visible from Antarctica.

Solar Eclipses are opportunities to see things in a new light. When the Sun and Moon unite, these unique displays remind us of the scope and beauty of the universe. We are an integral part of that universe.

Significantly, Neptune stations direct a day or so before this New Moon, enhancing opportunities for integration. The Sun symbolises consciousness and the Moon represents the unconscious, so when the two come together we can regroup. Neptune is also a symbol of the unconscious, so at this eclipse we have the capacity to make big strides in our personal development.

As always with powerful alignments, and especially eclipses, and Supermoons, there is added stress on the Earth's crust which brings high tides and can lead to earthquakes in sensitive regions of the Earth.

The Sun and Moon are quincunx Uranus, so once again the rebel planet is asking us to expand consciousness but this could involve an awkward adjustment.

Charts in the News Emmanuel Macron (AA)

Last month, French President Emmanuel Macron publicly accused PM Scott Morrison of lying over the submarine contract. As we know Scotty from Marketing is having a Uranus transit to his Venus, and Macron is playing a key role in his recent challenges, for he too has planets in the middle of fixed signs.

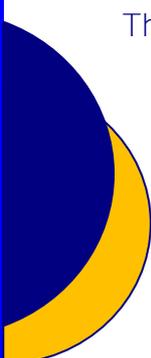

Macron has his Moon at 14 Taurus, his Mars at 11 Leo and his Uranus at 14 Scorpio. He is 42 and having his Uranus opposition transit, which is crossing his Moon and squaring his Mars.

Morrison has slippery Neptune opposite the Sun and his noon chart has the Moon conjunct Neptune suggesting he is gifted in the art of deception.

Macron on the other hand has a lot of planets in Sagittarius, which is known for truth telling. But his Neptune is conjunct Venus so he is a political animal too. The cross aspects here perfectly reflect the political stoush between the two leaders.

Both leaders face elections soon...

Gemini Full Moon

This Full Moon is a huge finale to what has been a tumultuous year.

Let's start with Gemini's ruler Mercury, which is in a tight square with Chiron. Chiron is within hours of its stationary direct. This combination highlights the power of words to heal, or to wound. This also speaks to the internal dialogue that we have with ourselves. Take a deep breath and make an effort to listen to positive messages.

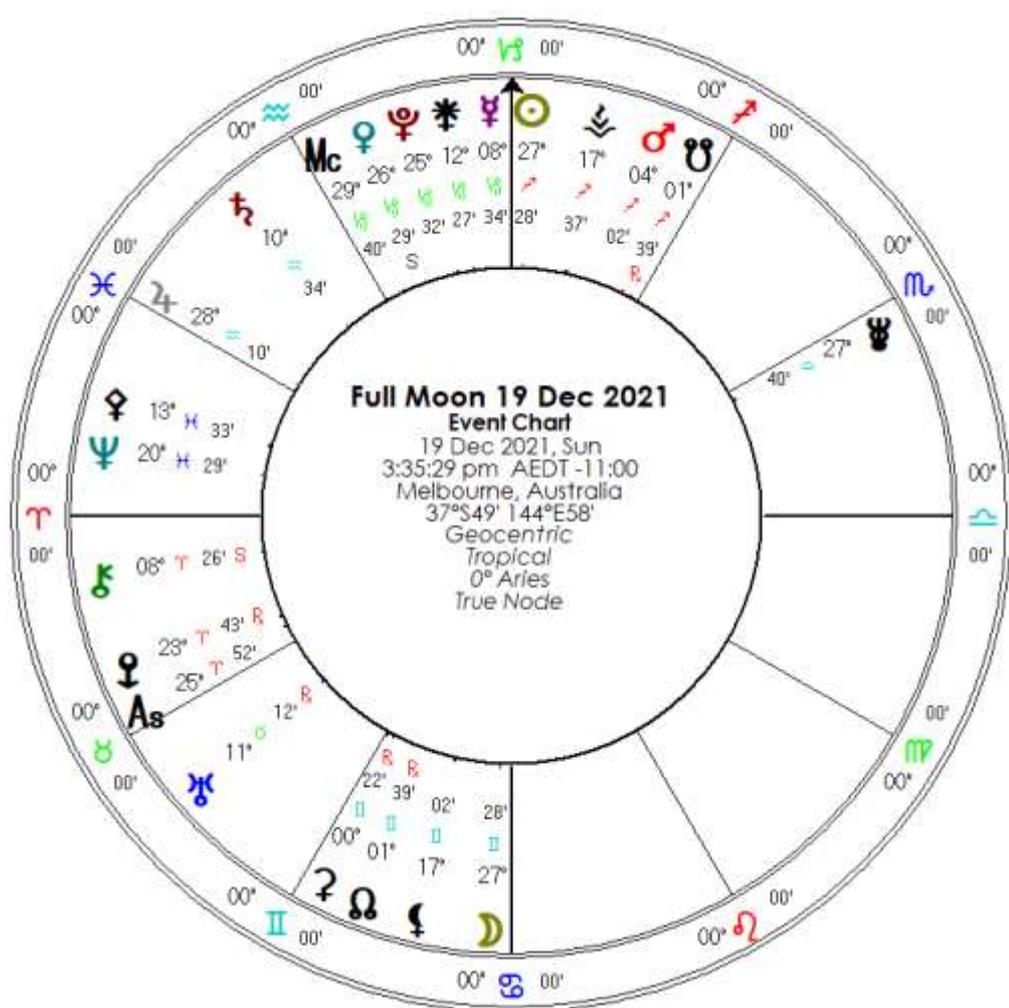

Venus is also making a conjunction to Pluto, a sure sign that we need to let go and move on from any toxic situation, or relationship.

Fear not, starting February we are set for an incredible renewal and rebirth. Creativity in all its forms is likely to surge in early 2022. New relationships and connections will flourish. Opportunities abound in 2022.

Meanwhile, we have the last hit of the Saturn-Uranus square to contend with. This will be exact on Christmas Eve, but it will continue to be felt for some time to come, especially with unrest in social and political circles.

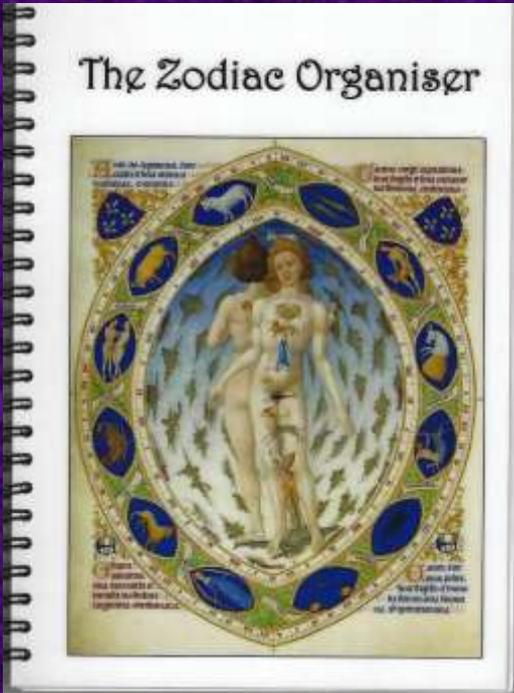

Ceres and Mars join the Nodal Axis now too, asking us to find middle ground and balance between quality vs quantity as we weigh up our options.

Venus is within hours of her stationary retrograde. The Venus synod is 584 days long, and 40 of these are retrograde. From now until the end of January we have an opportunity to let go of any personal or business relationships that are no longer worth our while.

solstice

There is a great deal of potent celestial activity this week, and the Solstice falls right in the midst of it.

On the 24th Saturn and Uranus will square off in their third exact hit. This is a good opportunity to release inner tension and any stress that we have been carrying. Although they will not meet again in an exact square for the time being, they remain in orb of square aspect for another 12 months. More details on this intense aspect are covered in last months INsight.

Jupiter shifts into Pisces on the 29th helping us unwind and relax over the Christmas break. This is also an opportunity to be thankful and express our gratitude in whatever way we choose. Volunteering to help others is a worthwhile option to express our spirit of generosity, especially at this time of the year.

Arguably the most important factor to consider at this Solstice is the Venus station and its conjunction to Pluto which reinforces the message to let go of any relationships or commitments that no longer serve us.

At the end of each year it's normal to make plans for the coming year. The chief message here is to be discerning in how we go about this process.

The message couldn't be any clearer. The Moon is in its home sign Cancer and opposing Venus and Pluto, urging us to trust our feelings and instincts.

After such a challenging and stressful period, many of us will be wondering how to move forward and how to rebuild. First and foremost, it's important to listen to what our heart is telling us. There has been so much grief and pain for everyone. It's now time to grieve those losses and to let them go.

Allow your heart to heal and begin to consider your options moving forward.

Take your time. Relax and restore your spirits.

Early next year there is a major reset. Energy, passion and creativity will return. But don't rush. Rest and allow healing to restore your spirit.

If you have to let go of people or commitments, they don't have any value for you any longer, so be it. Like trees, pruning makes space for new growth.

Set yourself free.
