ARIES new Moon

There are always positives and negatives. In every moment we have creative potential and choices. Some planetary combinations are more difficult than others. This Aries New Moon is involved with Chiron and Mercury. Aries ruler, Mars joins Saturn and Juno in Aquarius, squaring the Nodal Axis. These aspects are challenging, with Juno's vengeance of disloyalty front of mind. Chiron is about to commence a new synod, exposing wounds and potentially rubbing salt into them. Mars-Saturn aspects are often hard tests with a measure of frustration.

The more hopeful combination sees Jupiter and Neptune converging towards their alignment in mystical Pisces. This union creates a positive sextile/trine to the Nodal Axis. Jupiter-Neptune is exact mid-month and promises peace, understanding and empathy.

The eternal question that astrologers are always asked is, 'is that good or bad?' There is no clear way to answer this question. Each moment has positive and negative possibilities. The real question is, how can I become the best person I can be? How can I use aspects, whether natal or transiting, to bring about a positive outcome? How can astrology help me manage difficult times? We are all growing, developing and evolving and we can try to become better human beings and make better choices.

Lecture Title: Stationary Planets for Personal Development

The planets in our birth chart and their cycles symbolise our potential and how that potential develops over time. When planets station, they provide both challenges and opportunities for personal growth. In this presentation, Michele will show how we can make the most of stationary planets in our birth chart and when transiting stations cross our path.

CHARTS IN THE NEWS

ANTHONY ALBANESE

Leader of the Australian Labor Party, Anthony Albanese, was born 2 March 1963 in Sydney. No known time of birth is available so I am using a noon chart.

His Sun is in Pisces and is involved in a powerful conjunction with Chiron, while also tightly opposing Pluto and Ceres. This suggests he has developed into the person he is through some difficult experiences and tough life lessons.

Albanese recently underwent a metamorphosis, losing a lot of weight and sporting an altogether more smart persona. He is looking more like Prime Minister material. Those who have a strong Pluto in their charts often experience transformations, in this case his image (Sun) has clearly been reformed.

Currently, Jupiter is moving through Pisces. In his recent Solar Return chart (outer wheel below) transiting Jupiter is not far from his Sun and he has a Jupiter return in early April. Transiting Neptune is at 22-23 Pisces, and crossing his natal Jupiter throughout this month.

Albanese is 59 and he has just had his second Saturn Return, which is a key time in life for one's professional standing. Saturn transits often ramp up the level of responsibility and accountability. Meanwhile, transiting Pluto is on his South Node and his Venus—a clear indication of the process of metamorphosis that he is undergoing. Mars and Venus have recently crossed his Venus too.

All these powerful transits suggest that this Solar Return is a major time in life that is inviting him to step up and forward. There are a lot of outer planets triggering personal planets by conjunction, which are often seen at the start of a new chapter.

Without making specific predictions, these transits seem to be endorsing him as our next Prime Minister.

Next month I will look at Australia's chart and the chart for the day of the Federal election to see what further hints these charts might reveal. May 14 is being touted as the likely date.

LIBRA Full Moon

g

An peaceful and harmonious vibration is suggested by this Full Moon chart.

Despite Eris being in close proximity to the Sun, potentially stirring up trouble, Mars has shifted into calm Piscean waters and Juno is about to follow suit.

significance of this alignment on page seven.)

Jupiter is the traditional ruling planet of Pisces, and Neptune is the modern ruler. These planets are very much at home in mutable water and are essentially singing in harmony.

Expansive and fluid, spiritual and imaginative, this union has an abundance of hopefulness, understanding, empathy and compassion.

Libra's ruling planet, Venus, is also swimming in Piscean waters, making a communicative sextile to Uranus and Mercury. Mercury and Uranus enter into an insightful dialogue with one another in practical Taurus, where new sustainable ideas can be developed into standards and policies.

Peaceful resolutions are foreshadowed.

Pluto is however squaring the Sun and Moon, which offers us a way to rise above difficulties if we can. It's a process of letting go, or metamorphosis, so we might have to delve deep to do this.

The key feature of this Full Moon chart is the powerful conjunction of Jupiter and Neptune. This conjunction happens every 13 years but has not happened in Pisces since 1856. (More details on the historical sig-

Jupiter+Neptune

Jupiter is the traditional ruling planet of Pisces, and Neptune is its modern day ruler. Both planets share similar themes of expansiveness and spirituality and are very much at home in the sign of the fishes. They are in sync.

Jupiter-Neptune conjunctions happen at 13 year intervals, but they have not united in Pisces since March 1856.

So what was happening in the world at that time that might provide some insight into our current world situation?

One notable event was the signing of the Treaty of Paris (there have been several treaties of this name) but this one brought an end to the Crimean War. The Treaty was signed on 30 March 1856. Russia lost that war.

It's a sad and tragic reality that we are now seeing war in the same region of the globe. Putin is seeking to expand Russian territory by reclaiming Ukraine which was part of the old USSR.

Putin announced the invasion at the time of the Venus-Mars conjunction. Venus, Mars, and Vesta went on to unite with Underworld Pluto over recent weeks.

The potential for positive news is that this peaceful Jupiter-Neptune conjunction is exact in Moscow on the local descendant (representing others). This is also the midpoint of Sun-Eris-Athena group in Aries and Saturn in Aquarius, potentially brokering a peaceful solution to this conflict. Hopefully, it does not manifest as a further desire to expand Russian territory.

The conjunction forms an harmonious trine/sextile with the Nodal Axis, promising an equitable and workable solution.

I hope so.
