Sagittarius Full Moon

We all carry wounds and scars from our battles in life. This Full Moon reminds us that healing is an ongoing process.

Mars and Chiron unite in Aries, which could inflame our wounds.

Perhaps we carry our scars as a badge of honour, or do we ignore them and just carry on? Maybe we prefer to retaliate and wound others to even the score?

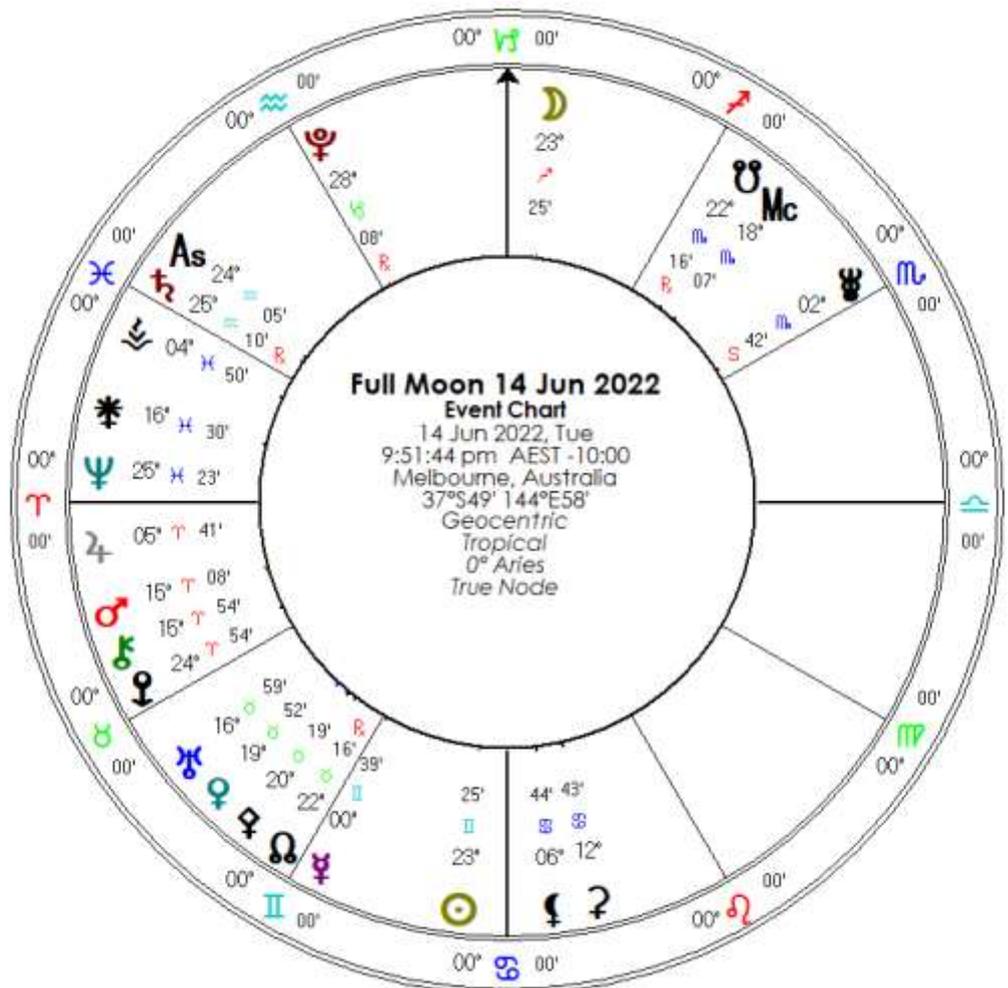

The courage to heal is symbolised by this Mars-Chiron conjunction in Aries. Jupiter too has recently crossed into the first sign of the zodiac, urging us to push forward. Jupiter is the natural ruling planet of Sagittarius, so being open to express our truth, especially our emotional truth is suggested by this Sagittarius Full Moon.

The Moon carries our emotions and our unconscious reactions and sometimes these can be expressed as physical symptoms. Memories of past events are stored here. This Full Moon is asking us to open our hearts and minds to the truth in order to heal.

In another sign of healing, asteroid Hygiea is virtually stationary now, so she too is asking us to focus on health and wellbeing.

Any overreactions at this Full Moon probably stem from wounding experiences. While this is often true, this Full Moon highlights these issues and provides opportunities and courage to explore deep seated healing.

Lecture Title: Stationary Planets for Personal Development

The planets in our birth chart and their cycles symbolise our potential and how that potential develops over time. When planets station, they provide both challenges and opportunities for personal growth. In this presentation, Michele will show how we can make the most of stationary planets in our birth chart and when transiting stations cross our path.

CHARTS IN THE NEWS

Australian Federal Election Wrap up

Transiting Uranus crossing over both Scott Morrison's Sun and the Moon in Australia's Legal chart has delivered a radical change to the political landscape. Greens and Teals have become a major force in politics, replacing the old two party system by adding a powerful third voice. Queensland, previously the most conservative state in Australia has elected a number of Greens to parliament!

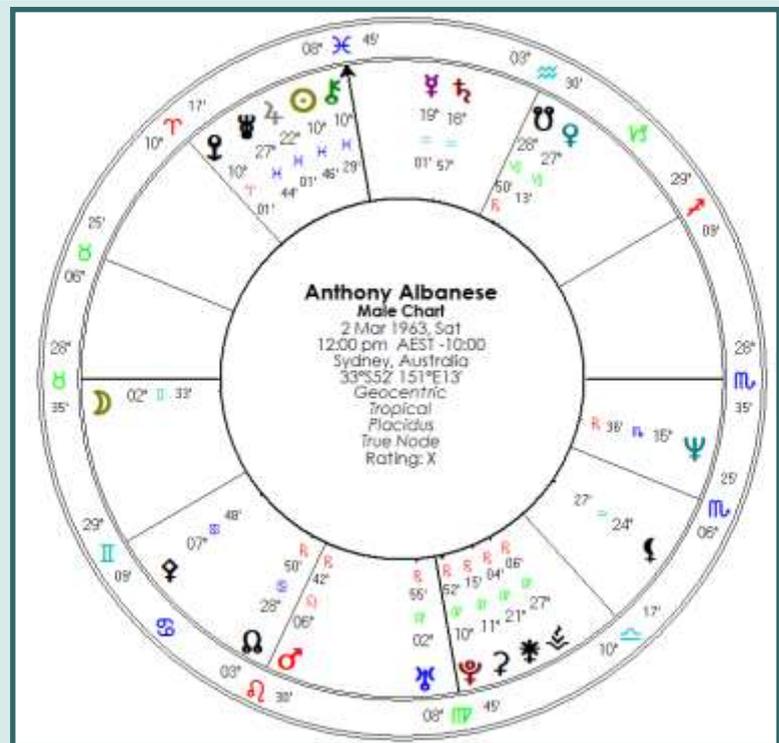

There was some discussion on FB about which chart to use for Federal elections. Previously, most astrologers chose the time of the opening of the polls at 8am on election day, but now that voting patterns have changed I think we need to change which chart we use. About 50 percent of people now vote before official polling day, in pre-poll and postal votes.

Someone, I forget who it was, suggested using the time the PM calls the election as the best time to use and I agree. When we look to the transits in that chart to Australia's chart you can clearly see the mood of the people. Apart from transiting Uranus on Australia's Moon, which is a clear signal for change, there is a Moon-Pluto opposition in the calling chart, another clear indication of the transformative energy at work at this time. The fact that the Moon is prominent also reflects the major role that women have played in the result, both in terms of their anger at Scott Morrison, and in so many women being elected especially the Teal independents. Transiting Ceres is also making a conjunction to Pluto.

A Pair of Fish—The New PM and New Treasurer

Interestingly, our new Prime Minister, Anthony Albanese and new Treasurer, Jim Chalmers were born on the same day (albeit different years.) Both men are Pisceans. Jim Chalmers (noon chart) was born in 2 March 1978 and will be turning 45 at his next birthday. Albanese was born 2 March 1963 and is in the midst of his second Saturn return. Albanese will get two more hits of his Saturn Return in October and November this year. Jim Chalmers will have his Saturn opposition transit in 2023. As they were born 15 years apart, the Saturn cycle is almost synchronised across both their charts.

Transiting Saturn will move through Pisces over the coming few years, and it will be at 11 Pisces linking with both men's Sun position in March 2024. This is likely to be an especially tough period of hard work for both of them.

Cancer new Moon

Neptune stations retrograde at this New Moon and Vesta is also at a virtual standstill. Those of you who have read my new book will know that stationary Vesta can manifest in an acute sense of tunnel vision. A number of passionate individuals born with stationary Vesta include Marie Curie, William Bligh, Thomas Edison, and Frances Farmer.

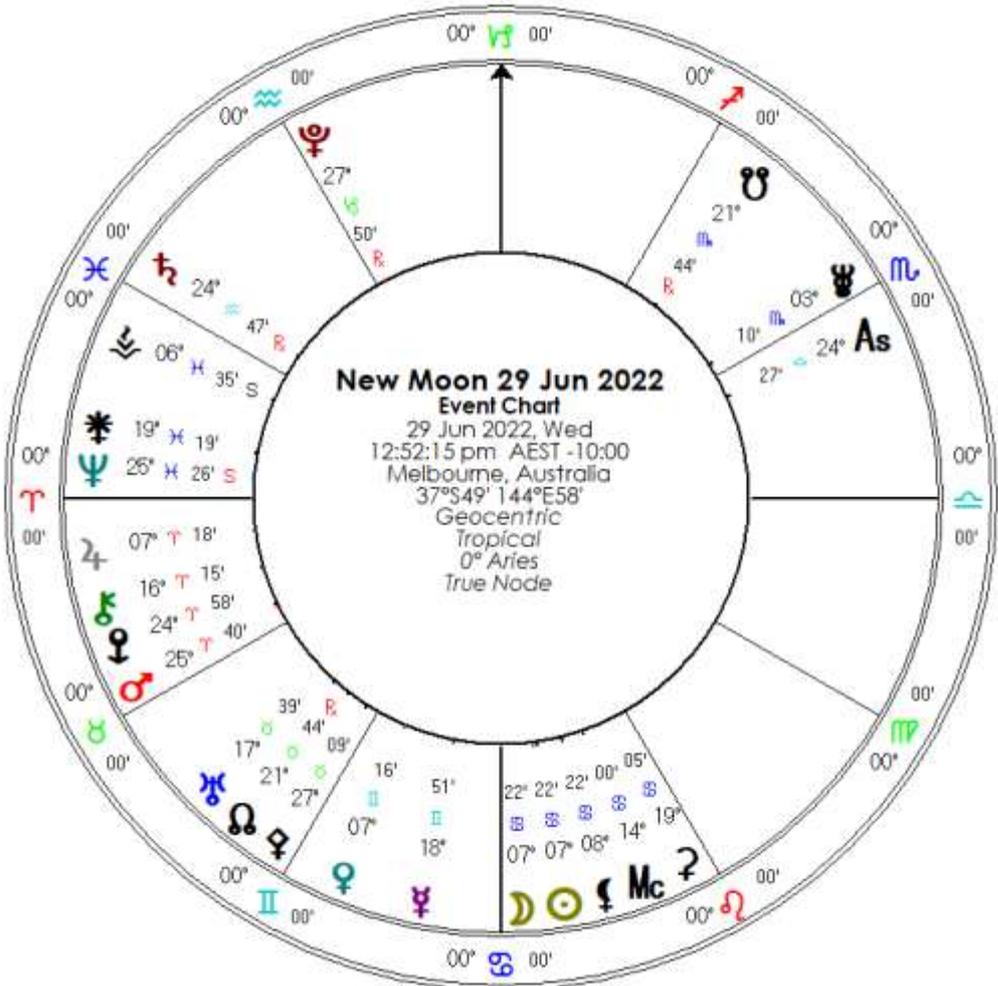

Associated with our capacity to focus, when stationary Vesta can turn to obsessive compulsive behaviour if emphasised in this way. Stationary Neptune can also become obsessive, in particular in religious settings and where our beliefs are concerned. With both Vesta and Neptune in spiritual and empathetic Pisces, this New Moon has the potential for beliefs to become cult-like and overtake rational thinking.

On a positive note, this combination provides a passion for charitable work, helping others and providing a spirit of generosity.

This New Moon tightly squares Jupiter in Aries, encouraging us to take risks and to step outside our comfort zone. At the same time Mars squares Pluto so the danger here is that taking risks can lead to violent outcomes. It's a fine line.

Cancer is a sign that plans carefully before making commitments. While often spontaneous and influenced by the mood of the moment and by intuition, Cancer is equally cautious, preferring to test the water before diving in head first.

For the cardinal water sign, intuition and strategy both play a key role in decision making, and that is especially true at this New Moon.

Cancer solstice

The Moon joins a stellar line up of planets in forthright Aries, motivating our desires and passions. Aries always wants direct action but can sometimes act rashly. Jupiter in Aries is exuberant and wants nothing more than to forge ahead. Somewhat lacking in patience, but with an abundance of confidence, the Moon and Jupiter along with Mars in his own sign, are ready to engage at a moment's notice.

ly associated with leadership, is in fact a cardinal sign, and should not be underestimated. Aries might be more dynamic and impulsive but Cancer is a strategist and this strategic thinking, like the movement of the crab itself, can involve a number of side steps in order to cover its flanks. It might take longer to get to its destination, but a well executed plan will often succeed where a quick knee-jerk reaction will fail. The challenge now is giving Aries a short term task where he can strike while his iron is hot, while quietly working out a plan of attack that covers all bases. Confidence is high, but it would be prudent not to jump the gun. Make time to consider options and think things through before making firm commitments.
