AQUARIUS full Moon

August often brings a distinct change in both the weather and the general energy of the year. We are past the midpoint of 2022 and the seasons are shifting. Extreme weather is often seen at this time of year as patterns start to change from hot to cold, or cold to hot. These extremes are becoming more intense due to climate change. August is often windy and these changes are reflected within us.

This Full Moon activates Saturn and Uranus which are closing in towards another square in October. Though this aspect does not reach exactness, it is tightening and producing tension.

The fixed grand cross in this chart involving Sun, Moon, Saturn, Uranus and the Nodal Axis plus Mars is a powerful sign that feelings and passions are intense now. Fixed signs can be intractable.

Uranus is more than half way through its seven year sojourn in fixed earth sign Taurus, where it has been shaking up financial systems and urging us to address environmental issues. This Full Moon could press a lot of buttons and foreshadows passionate exchanges and the potential for protests about a range of issues.

With Saturn as the old ruler of Aquarius, and Uranus the modern ruler, the argument between traditional approaches (Saturn) versus new futuristic models (Uranus) is likely to be front and centre.

CHARTS IN THE NEWS

USA'S PLUTO RETURN

The news from the US each day seems to get worse. The country appears to be on a downward spiral. Founded on 4 July 1776, Pluto was then located at 27CP33. Pluto has now completed one full revolution and is returning to that position this year.

The US has three hits of this Pluto Return. The first exact hit was in February (outer wheel below) which coincided with a passionate Venus-Mars conjunction, also in Capricorn, sign of the establishment and most associated with government.

Every day in the US people die in mass shootings yet nothing is being done to stop the violence. Meanwhile, the Supreme Court has decided that abortion is no longer legal. What about the right of the living to live?

Pluto is known for its revolutionary impact, in fact the word 'revolution' comes from the orbital return of planets like Pluto, that foster systemic change.

Pluto's main theme is about death and rebirth, endings and beginnings. Change is inevitable. Will Pluto's Return spark much needed cultural change? Pluto transits often take us to our lowest ebb before initiating a rebirth.

Last month the second exact hit of the Pluto Return came along and the third will be in December. (See charts on page 7)

At the time of this first hit, Neptune was opposing its 1776 position. Now at 22 Pisces, Neptune was at 22 Virgo in 1776. Neptune has travelled one and a half times through the zodiac since US Independence.

Neptune in Pisces has muddied the waters. Over recent years we've seen the advent of 'fake news' and a host of conspiracy theories that have caused mass confusion. Many people were misled by people like Donald Trump, who was born with stationary Neptune, and who embodies some of the stranger aspects of Neptune.

That Neptune features in these Pluto Return charts adds another layer of confusion and the potential for the continued spread of misinformation.

virgo new Moon

Virgo is a contemplative sign, analytical, introverted and thoughtful. This Virgo New Moon however is unlikely to go under the radar.

Uranus stations retrograde a couple of days before this New Moon, and is engaged with the Nodal axis, plus the Saturn-Uranus square is tightening further. These aspects suggest tension is building. Ceres, earth goddess of grain and crops, who has a symbolic link to Virgo, sits with Venus, Libra's ruler and they are now tied into the Saturn-Uranus-Nodes fixed grand cross.

The Uranus station may hold the key to how these aspects play out. A sudden release of energy that releases pent up tension is suggested.

Hygiea is also connected into this scenario, closely aligned with the South Node. This New Moon, while volatile, may also bring about opportunities to clear the air, deep seated healing and a fresh start.

The Sun and Moon are making a very tight square to Mars in action packed Gemini, generating a great deal of restlessness and movement.

Mercury is the ruling planet of both Virgo and Gemini and it's sitting on the fence in Libra, having an each-way bet on the outcome of this debate. But Libra is also a cardinal sign and therefore keen to take action. I suspect there will be a lot of heated words around this New Moon as we try to reach consensus.

Neptune's orbit is 165 years long. The last time Neptune was in Pisces and opposing the 1776 position was around 1860 when Abraham Lincoln was elected, just before the American Civil War. Lincoln was a Republican, elected on a platform to abolish slavery. How far have Republican standards and values sunk since that time?

States that opposed abolition joined forces and fought a bloody Civil War which they lost. Slavery was abolished, and yet there is still racial tension and injustice today.

After the recent Supreme Court ruling on abortion, a host of US states are trying to uphold the right to abortion, while a bunch of other states are banning it. State v State once more.

By the time the last hit of Pluto's Return comes along in December this year, Neptune will once again be located at 22 Pisces.

Mercury will be stationary on 29 December and make a conjunction to Pluto just when Pluto returns and Neptune is once more opposing Neptune. The Moon and Juno will combine with Neptune.

Whatever transpires, much needs to change in the US. There are many social issues; minimum wages are very low and poverty is widespread, yet billions are spent on defence systems and weapons. The education and health systems are clearly in need of reform too. Pluto's Return is bringing these matters to a head. In about seven years time Uranus will return to its 1776 position once more too, perhaps then we will see the light of a better future for all its people.
