may 2023

In March, revolutionary Pluto crossed the threshold of futuristic community-minded Aquarius, delivering some exciting and dynamic transformations for humanity.

Pluto in Aquarius is seeding breakthroughs in technology like AI, and clean renewable energy, but it also speaks to the shared resources of our living planet that have to be preserved and managed with the future of humanity in mind.

This process will unfold in stages. The first is the transition stage from March 2023 to November 2024 when Pluto will at times be backtracking through the last stages of Capricorn and crossing back and forth over the first degrees of Aquarius.

On 2 May, Pluto stations retrograde and commences tracking back towards Capricorn where there is unfinished business to work through. Before we can fully engage with the developments that are promised by Pluto in Aquarius, there is a lot of restructuring still to happen.

Old ways of doing things and the infrastructure that has underpinned industry is now being mothballed. Coal and gas and other polluting fuels are being replaced by clean renewables.

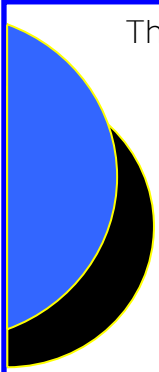

Aquarius is the sign of the water-bearer and its chief methods are distribution, and cleansing. The etymology of 'February', the month when the Sun is in Aquarius, means 'purification'.

SCORPIO LUNAR ECLIPSE

This lunar eclipse takes place in the heart of fixed sign Scorpio. There is a lot of activity around the middle of fixed signs this year, delivering resilience and determination, but also resistance to change. Pluto stations retrograde on 2

May, dredging up unfinished business. Pluto governs all kinds of powerful forces, psychological, invisible and material that pertain to the process of death and rebirth. This Penumbral Lunar Eclipse is visible in Australia in the early morning hours when most of us are asleep.

Mercury is retrograde from April 21 through May 15 in Taurus, giving us pause to rethink our approach to all things financial. Interestingly, the Australian Federal Budget will be handed down on May 9 when Uranus commences a new synodic cycle, pushing ahead with conscious reforms such as the review into The Reserve bank. The impact of these two opposing forces, one that is determined to maintain the status quo, and the other consciously seeking to change processes with equal determination, speaks to the ongoing battle being played out in many settings. Ceres is stationary making her environmental message very clear.

CHARTS IN THE NEWS

MAD OLD PR NUT

Once again we are seeing the political circus in the US with the madness of Donald Trump yet again filling the headlines following his arrest on 34 charges in early April. The saga continues.

Mad old PR Nut (anagram) was born on a lunar eclipse. This 1946 lunar eclipse was part of Saros 117 (Brady 2 Old North) which began in the year 792. This Saros cycle will conclude in 2036.

Significantly, in the original chart for the first eclipse in 792, Pluto is located at 24CP46 and sits in direct opposition to Nut's Venus-Saturn conjunction. In fact the midpoint of his Venus-Saturn conjunction is 24CN46 and Pluto in the 792 original eclipse chart is exactly opposite at 24CP46!!!

The Sabian Symbol for 24 (25) Cancer is "A leader of men wrapped in an invisible mantle of power"

Transiting Pluto began opposing this point in March 2020 when COVID first emerged and it continued to move back and forth over this exact point until November 2021.

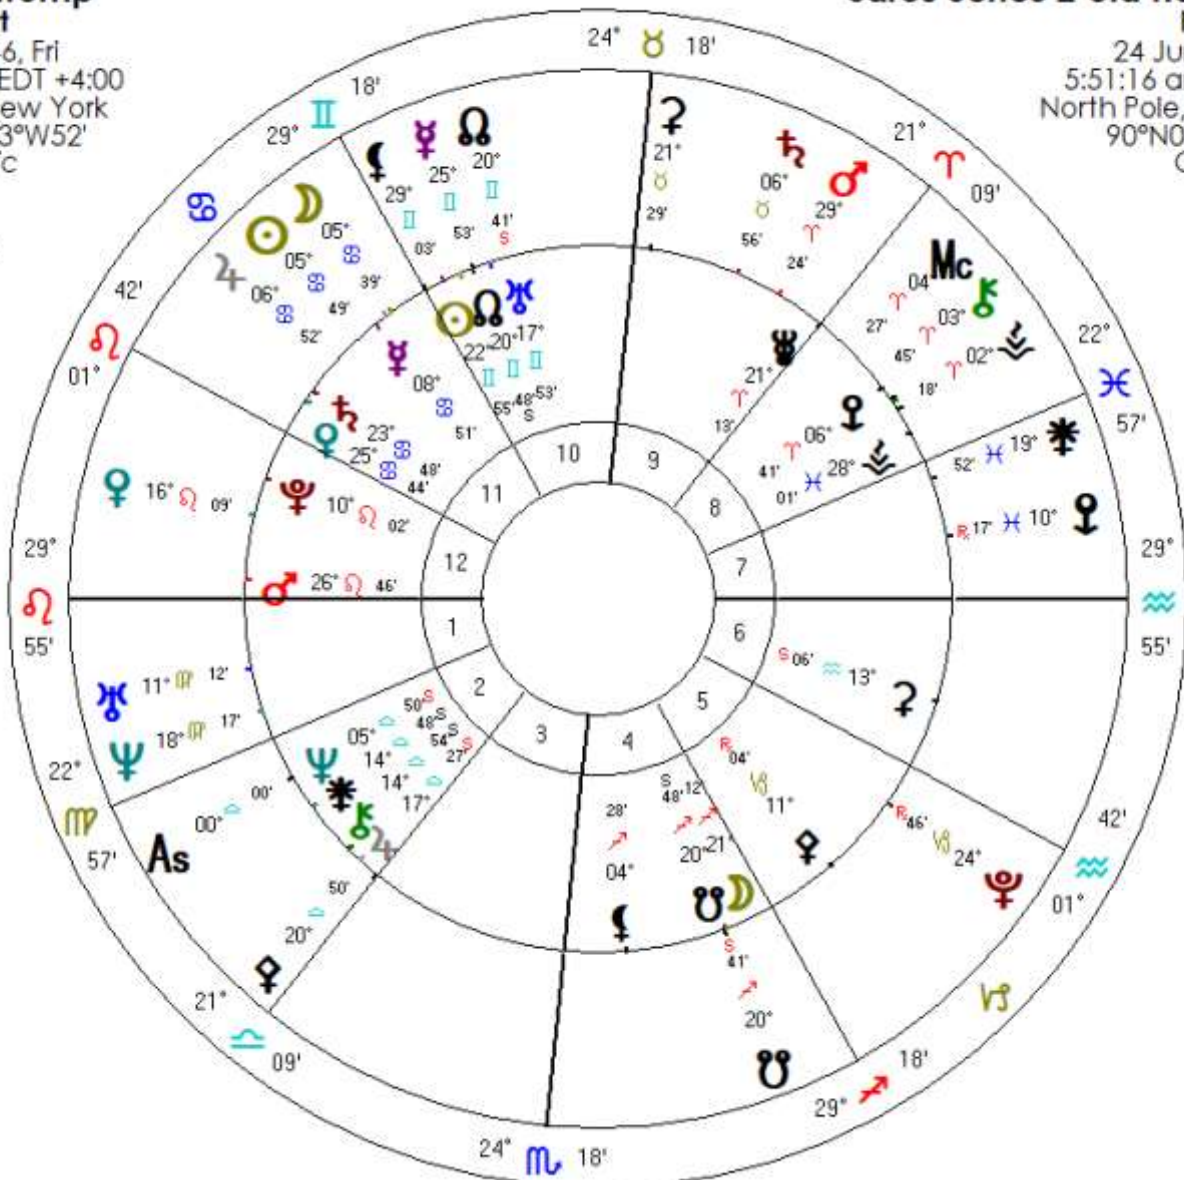

It's worth noting that in the Sibly US chart, Mercury is located at 24CN11 and Pluto at 27CP33. The US is undergoing its Pluto Return, where a host of Underworld energies are being exposed, seeking transformation.

Transiting Pluto does not quite get back to 27CP33 in October 2023 when it stations direct, but it's very close to that point. It lingers and will still be a big factor to consider until at least the end of 2023 if not longer.

Taurus new moon

There's a large gathering of touches, so inflation may continue. In Taurus there is a touch of Midas, New Moon, including for better or worse. This is especially expansive Jupiter which shifts to this bullish sign on the 17th.

Jupiter in Taurus elicits a sense of abundance and prosperity, but also arouses a feeling of indulgence and extravagance. Jupiter expands whatever it touches, so inflation may continue. In Taurus there is a touch of Midas, including for better or worse. This is especially expansive Jupiter which shifts to this bullish sign which is known to exacerbate financial challenges and wasteful practices.

With Mars in late Cancer, generating a potent T-square with Pluto and Jupiter, this New Moon delivers a powerful urge to spend and to take financial risks. This is especially significant given the current financial challenges unfolding at this time. Mars-Pluto hard aspects are often volatile, so we can expect that the financial markets will swing about wildly as we enter this lunation.

As a rule, Taurus is very security conscious and adept at managing finances, but with dynamic Mars, volatile Pluto and eccentric Uranus involved, big wins and big losses are likely to be amplified.

Joining the Sun, Moon and Jupiter in Taurus are the North Node, Mercury, Vesta and Uranus. In the wake of the Federal Budget, we are likely to see some major reforms and policy changes.

NUT CIRCUS

In a month or two the July New Moon will be located at 24CN56 adding further pressure to both Trump's chart and the US Sibly chart.

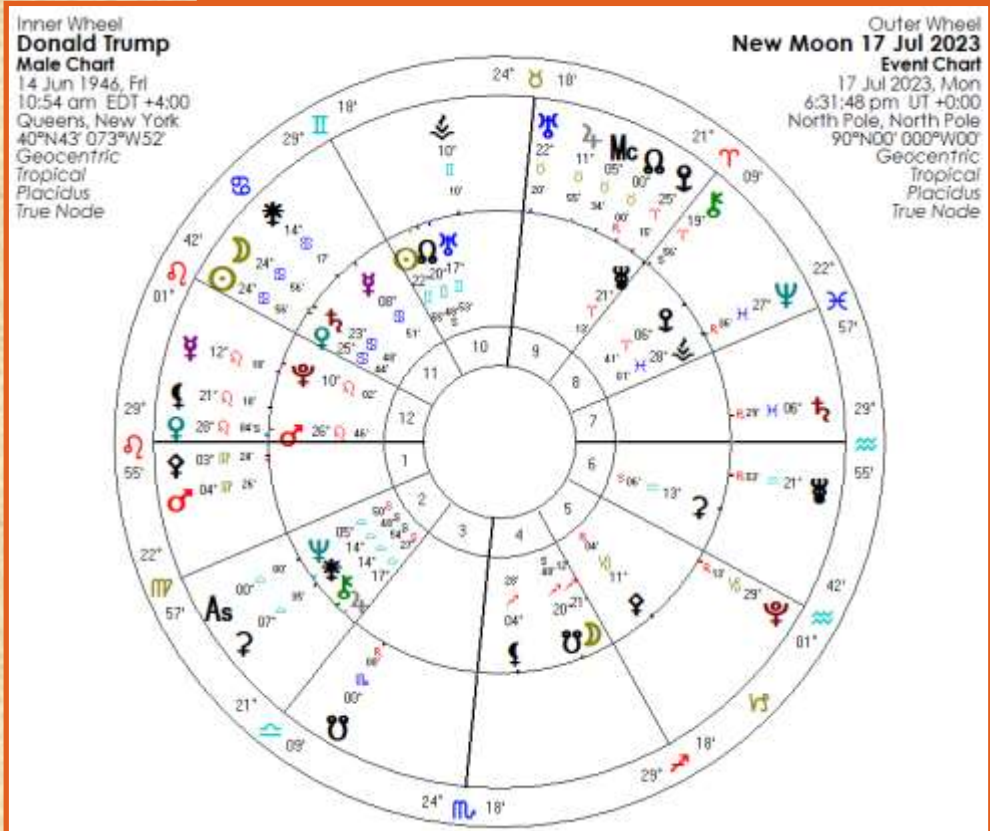

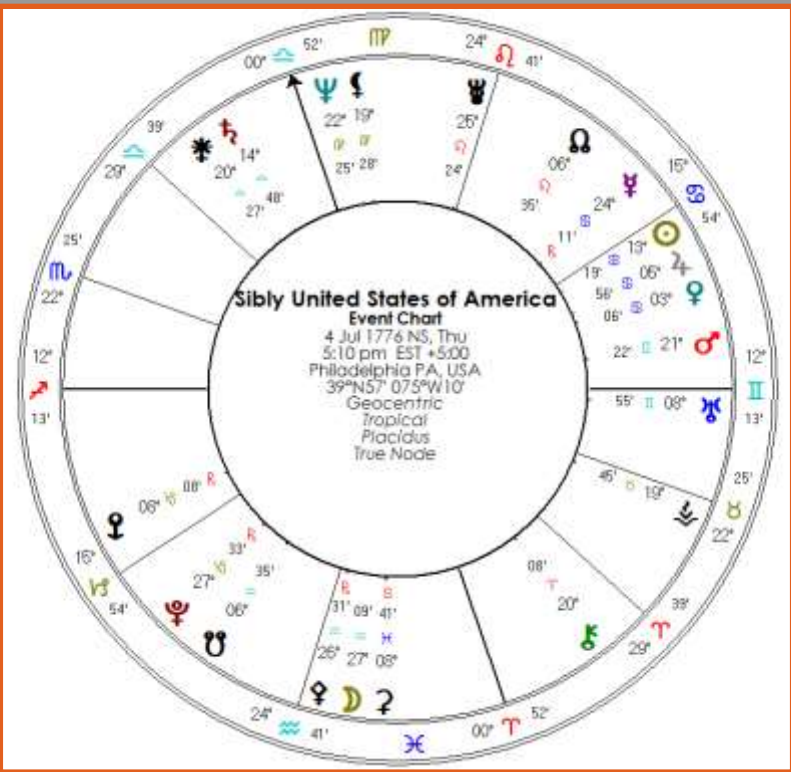

We've seen a number of heavy transits to both charts over recent times. The former President has so far survived the onslaught, but the pressure continues to build. I believe crunch time is fast approaching. July this year looks like a significant month for the unfolding process of reform that centres around the former President. We know that the US is undergoing its Pluto Return, a process of revolutionary forces is underway.

The New Moon in July takes place at 24CN56, on the midpoint of Trump's Venus-Saturn conjunction and exactly opposing Pluto in the 792 eclipse chart.

What's more, transiting Venus will station at 28LE36 on 23 July, hitting his Mars/Asc (midpoint 28LE21).

There are two other stations taking place on 22-23 July: Eris and Chiron. Eris stations at 25AR15 and Chiron at 19AR57. they are squaring his Venus-Saturn. Transiting Uranus is about to hit his MC. Though it will not do so until 2024, it's well within orb.

The many issues in the US, such as the ongoing gun violence and lack of laws around this and industrial safety standards will continue until action is taken.
